Dorothy was a powerful force in life. She was fiercely independent and said exactly what she wanted to say and did exactly what she wanted to do. She valued education and graduated from Whitefish Bay High School and the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She continued auditing classes, attending seminars and lectures, and traveling with Elderhostel with her husband, Donald, well into their senior years. She loved her job as a religious school teacher at Congregation Shalom where she worked for many years. She passed on her love of learning, travel, museums, libraries, and adventures to her children and grandchildren. Dorothy shared and found joy, fun and laughter in many places for her entire life. She had a positive attitude and made friends wherever she went. Most of all she loved and adored and was so proud of her family.
