“ Harold Hiken,

“ I shared this memory with a Facebook friend last night and after I posted it looked up Mr Hiken on the internet, I am 80 years old so I suspected that this is what I would find.

I had an Algebra teacher, Harold Hiken. He wrote: "Pete, Still waters run deep, I hope.

H. Hiken"

in my yearbook for my senior year of Highschool (Class of '62). I mention this because, not only would I have failed his class without his help, but he was the only teacher in that school who could remember my name without looking at a seating chart first.

He may have guided several struggling kids through Algebra, and he may have written that silly aphorism in 50 yearbooks for all know, but I remembered it, and it actually served to help me define myself.

Teachers can change lives and never even know it, a smile, a frown, saying "Hi Pete" in the hallway to the kid that doesn't fit in...

“ Howard Spector: Class of 1961:

I remember when Sony told me that if I just show up on time for the Algebra Final Exam, He would pass me. Well I had an accident while driving my mother's car on the way to take the test. He passes me anyway

Sony was a wonderful man.

My sincere condolences to his family.

Howard Spector.
