Jeffrey remembers his brother...

"I couldn't have asked for a better big brother, or even medium sized or little brother, than Steve: kind, gentle, understanding and generous.

I don't know who I can talk to now, about music, law, the Supreme Court, M*A*S*H, the Brewers, beloved celebrities who've just died (!), current events, and our mutual employer, the State of Wisconsin. When I finally get to see the Milwaukee Symphony's new concert hall -- which our recently departed dear father would have loved, and which Steve and I had postponed seeing because of Covid -- I may well purchase an extra, empty seat for Steve. Maybe two.

Few of us can imagine the devastation felt by family members who've lost loved ones to the war in Ukraine, or recent horrific events in this country . . . but I'm certain that the devastation I now feel from Steve's abrupt, unfair departure comes pretty damn close.

Steve, remember the "Seinfeld" episode when none of the pals wanted to see the movie he wanted to see? Elaine said, "Why not just go alone?", and he replied, "What am I supposed to do -- make wisecracks to strangers?!" I'll miss the give and take of our great, and not quite as great, puns and one-liners. Oh, how I love you, bro, and wish that I could go on doing so in person."

Jeff, the loving tribute that you wrote for Steve is so beautiful. And your Seinfeld quote is so apt. Steve was such an avid Seinfeld fan. I remember many conversations with him when he'd say, "that reminds me of a Seinfeld episode, the one where ... [fill in the blank]." Steve had such a great sense of humor. I will miss our occasional chats in the State Office Building. My condolences to the entire family on your loss. From a long-time fellow DWD employee.
